[HALIFAX, NS] Sales drop, prices rise in real estate market: Real estate activity in HRM is dipping and house prices are increasing. Yesterday, the Nova Scotia Association of Realtors released their statistics of residential sales and listings. This fall, activity was down 20.1 per cent in Halifax and Dartmouth compared to the same period last year. But Royal LePage released their House Price Survey and it shows Halifax saw increases across all three housing types in the third quarter.

Detached bungalows increased by 7.2 per cent

Standard two-storeys increased 5.5 per cent

Condo prices went up 4.3 per cent.
